Scizure of Railread Books. The Iowa Central Air Line Railroad Company

The Iova Central Air Line Railroad Company is in progress of disintegration and dissolution. The President has resigned, as also some of the Directors. Certain stockholders have commenced soits in Chancery against the officers of the Company, the object being to get rid of the $750,000 Land Grant "black mail bonds," issued by the Directors to persons who aided in lobbying the Grant through Congress. Also to compet the Directors to dissorge or cancel the $250,000 of "full prid stock" which they vated them selves about a year ago for real or empositions corridos—amounds varying from $15,000 to $22,000 erch, and $50,000 to the President, which he has tendered bank. A farther object is to provest any consolidation of the road wing the Clinton and Ceder Rajbin Company, which last is unnecessary, as the latter Company decline a fusion with the Lyons read on any frame clines.

LA CRESCENT.—This prominent and promising town in Minesota, is repidly advancing in inferowements, and her improvements and progress promote the interests of our city. During the last year, La Orescent has been appreciated by foreign capitalists, who have learned and know that it must become a great commercial point. The money of these capitalists has been liberally isvosted, and a great number of beautiful outages, a gravel road from the landing to the city, a dopot established for the great Southern Minnesota Rail Road, continuous with the principal truck railroad of Wisconsin, secure to La Greecent a future great with promise. No more beautiful site for an important commercial point exists in the State of Minnesons. Emigration to that State has been, during the past year, enorexists in the State of Minnesota. Emigration to that State has been, during the past year, enormous. La Grescoet will never equal La Grosse, but we predict that La Grescoet will, in a few years, have a population three times the amount of Winoma. In fact, we do not believe that any town, between Dubeque and St. Paul, on the west side of the Mistissippi, five years from new, will equal La Grescoet in population intelligence, public improvements, schools and religious institutions.

La Crossa and La Crescent are the only points between Dubeque and St. Paul, to which the best agricultural valleys in the two States are tributary. From La Crescent, the richest and most beautiful country in Minnesota is that, through which passed the Southern Minnesota Rail Road. The road is now being rapidly constructed, and one year from to day, we can take the cars to Rochester. Much credit is due Hon. T. M. Roberts, for the energy and tach the has abown in promoting the interests of the company for which he is agent.—La Crosse National Democrat.

German Vote.— Our Exchanges in Buffalo all acknowledge the very great indebtedness of the Republicans of that city to the German vote.—
The Rechester Democrat, the Milwaukee Sentimel, and other papers accord the same praise to the Germans of their respective localities. The same is true in this city, where within a few years a large portion of our intelligent German ditizens have acted with the Republican party.—
The German heart beats true to freedom, and when the principles of the Republicans are better understood by this class of our population. when the principles of the Aspublicates are de-ter understood by this class of our population, than whom we have no more orderly and thrifty oblights, we may calculate upon securing nucl-the larger part of this influential vote, which has already in this locality aboven from year to year an increased preference for free principles, -De-troit Tribune.

The Uatanda Vistage for 1858.—The yield of vineyards in Ramilton county, Ohlo, for 1858 is 14,600 gellons; Brown county 18,019, and Clarmont 2,500—a total of 33,500 gallons in three counsides. Mr. Fournier, the director of Longworth's Wine House, stries that the wine of 1858 is of superior quality, being as good as the celebrated vintage of 1855, and the yield is considerably greater than that of '57. The price per gallon ranges from $1 to $1 20, the latter being the current quotation. The entire crop is valued at $40,000. Mr. F. has purchased 25, 000 gallons of the new wine.

The vintage of Hermany, Missouri, this year, has been an average one, in spite of the proof prospects of the early part of the season. The Grman paper at Hermann states that the quantity of wine produced will rouch 5,000 gallons, which is highly satisfactory in view of the fact that last year's geld was enformous, and that types esidem yield two consecutive heavy crope.

The vintage in France this season is enormous, and countage represent the crop of grapes as unparalleled.

Mr. make the acquaintance of many of our citizens | Conswall, a very elequent young lawyer, and and commercial acquaintance between the two morning.

Yesterday forenoon our Light Guard, Capt STARSWEATHER, conducted their guests through some of the principal streets, each company pre ceded by its own Band, playing alternately. It was the intention to parade through all the principal streets, but the unpleasant state of the weather prevented them from extending their march as far as they otherwise would have done-In the course of their march they were entertained at the residence of Capt. HERRY JUMPERIZ.-The Chicago Press and Tribune thus speaks of the young man Inversez who resided in this city a short time before he committed the dreadful crime for which he is now avaiting trial:

The visitor in our Cock County Jail who might see a good looking young man, well dressed, this and nest and unusually cheerful in spressince, sauntering freely about the confiders, lounging carefersly at some window overlooking the street, or busity reading, always gay and over menty, with nothing in hid air or mine to stamp him as one likely in any way to hear the penelty of the law, and certainly not its must sorieus and heary forfait, would be surprised to hear that he, the visitor, seen before him Henry Jumpertz, late barber's journeyman, whose name has traveled the country over, connected in starling capitale, and by sickening details with the Suphia Warner tragedy.

To look at him in july at any hour of the day, one would not suppose he had a care, and yet in another repository in the Court. House building are a barrel and a saw, the two destined to figure in the coming trial.

Jumpertz is to abswer the charge of having mental the content of the c moding careferely at some window overlookies

Jumperiz is to answer the charge of having murdered his companion in sheme, and conding mysteriously to a distant fitz, for remains packed in a herrel. The case is a singular one in our annels, and the trial will recarded. The prisener is confident of being able to prove his innocence of the crims of murder, and table fresh of the nessees which induced him, as he says, to with to conceal the desth of his mistress. She has created all who have heard postponed.

Ho is envious for trial, which he never wished postponed.

The evidence against him is made up of the complete identification of the barrel here by the person of whom Jumperiz purchased it, and by the temains of the unfortunate woman, which have been recognized and sworn to by her late acquaintances. The link to be added must be the testimony of the Corener, or some other person in New York city, who saw the remains first taken from the barrel, and that the same were re-shipped to this place. were re shipped to this place.
During his long incarceration of saveral months, Jumpertz' cheerfulness has been unatated. He has been a great reader, has kept his

ted. He has been a great reader, has kept his cell in the most ecrupations nestness, and frequently has exercised his tensorial skill in a masteur way, upon the heads and chins of his attendants and fellow prisoners.

Of the five prisoners now in jail here on a charge of murder, Jumperiz is the most intelligent, at the same time most unconcerned. Part of it may be due to a confidence of being able to prove his innecence, but more of it probably formed between the commendation.—La Grosse National Democrat.

or it may be due to a connectic of cening and to prove his innucence, but more of it probably arises from a fatalistic philosophy, like that which through trial, conviction and imprisonment, to the very foot of the gallows, sustained Staub, executed in this city some months since. How to BURN COAL .- Nine out of ten who attempt to hurn coal in a stove, waste about as much coal as is necessary to be consumed for the obtaining of all the heat desirable. Observe the following simple rules, suggested by a cotemporary, and tew who adops the burning of coal will return to wood fires. We will suppose the stove to be cleaned out:

First, to make a coal fire—Fut in a double bandful of shavings, or use kindling wood instead. Fill the earther cavity (it the stove hardone) nearly full of chunks of dry wood, say four or six inches in length. On the top put about a dozen lumps of egg goal. In tou minutes and about twenty lumps more of coal. As soon as the weed has burned out, fill the cavity hulf to two-thirds full of coal. The fire will be a good one. The coal will, by these directions, become thoroughly ignited.

Second—Never fill a stove more than hulf or two-thirds full of coal, even in the coldest weather. to be cleaned out :

Tolrd-When the fire is low, never shake the Toird—When the fire is low, never abake the grate or disturb too ashes, but add from ten to diffect small lumps of coal, and set the draught open. When these are heated through and somewhat ignited, add the amount necessity for a new fire, but do not disturb the acher you. Lot the draught be open half an hour. Now shake out the acher. The coal will be thoroughly ignited, and will keep the store at high host from six to twelve hours, according to the coldmost of the weather.

Johnson's Atheneuu. -- Our neighbor of the Wisconsin has had a prep at the stage fixtures for Jonason's Atheneum at Young's Hall, and he says they are admirably fitted up, and, undoubtedly, he is correct, for Jonsson never half does what he undertakes. The ecenery is all new and of the very best kind, a new drop curtain Sattes, M. D., of Yernou, Oneida Co., N. X. has been painted, the prosection has been been tifully ornamented, and the stage appointments are all complete. The hall, as is well known, as been completely renovated, improved, decorated, provided with conveniences, and adapted to theatrical purposes, so that it is now superior in point of beauty, comfort and acoustic propertles, to any ball in the city. The theatre will undoubtedly open Monday night, but the reason the programme is not published, we are informed, is because the Manager is waiting for his leading man, who is expected to be here to-day. He will undoubtedly be here to-night, and then everything is in readiness for a successful and brilliant opening, on Monday night.

New Yons, Nov. 12.

The steamer Star of the West, from Aspinwall, strived this overlog, bringing Sun Francisco dates to the 20th ult., and $1,870,000 in specie. Anong her passengers are Mr. McKibbin, M. C. from California, and Mesers. Smith and Grover, M. C's from Oregon.

The ship John E. Thayer, of Boston, was burned on the 12th of Sept., off Latos Island, Gulf of Californic. Crew saved.

The Star of the West left Aspinwall Nov. 3d. In port were the Frigats Roanake and Sloop of War Sarstoga; all well. Also the ships John L. White and Tallehiese, and bark Martha Wengel.

The principal consignees are Wells, Fargo & Oo., $156,000; American Exchange bank, $155, 000; Strauts Bros. $128,000; Howell & Aspinwall, $113,000: Frocma & Oo., $100,000; W. F. Wold, $21,000: Treadwell & Co., $15,000; Howe & Growall, $4,000.

There is but little news to add to what has all.

F. Wold, $21,000: Treadwell & Co., $15,000; Howe & Crowell, $4,000.

There is but little news to add to what has already reached us by the overland mail. The ship General Cushing, bound for Sidney, while beating down San Francisco Bay, on the 15th, got ashure at Fort Poiot, and will prove a total less. She was loaded with grain, a portion of which will be asyed.

A woman named Sarah Neal was murdered on the 19th of Oct. near Sacramunto by a Chinaman, who was hung by a mob two hours after committing the crime.

THE GOVERNOR ECECT OF NEW YORK .-- EDWIN in New York, and one of the most respected of its citizens. Mr. Morgan is a native of Massachine, on the Sin of February, 1811. At the age of seventeen he left home without money, and went to Hantlord, Connection, to seek his fortune. He was engaged by a trader for a term of three years, at a small salary. Shortly after the expiration of this period, his employer being pleased with his efforts, and observing his business capacity, took him into partnership. The firm was quite successful, but Mr. Morgan remained in it only two or three years, preferring to give fuller scope to his energies, and he therefore removed to New York, and one entollshed himself as a wholesale groom. He has been highly successful in his business, and he reputation was furnly established among the business men of the metropolis long before he became known to public life.

The Sinvery Question -- Histor to wards Emuncipation in Missouri. The Influence of Slavery upon Free Stave.

The Sinvery Quistion—Filter to wards Emancipation in Filter Stave. The works Emancipation in Filter Stave In ago is one of excitement. The world is full of squarion, but no where does it spring from questions of more vital consequence, than fin our own land and State. The sensation, come plaint, sherm, attested by the most striking plushing influence upon society and its rainous effects to the interests of the laboring classes. The articles are from the pen of a resident of a Slave State. They bear unmistiable evidence of ability, candor and sincerity, and the views of the writer cannot but commend themselves to the good sense of every unbiased reader. Although bearing more particularly upon the subject of emancipation in Missouri, yet they embrace as able, candid and philosophical a view of the slavery question and its verious relations to, and influences upon society, as we have ever seen, and will be read with equal interest by the Lieuds of free labor and opponents of Slavery extension in all parts of the country.

Inasmuch as the Free States constitute the battle ground upon which we have to fight the stavery extensionists and doughtaces, it is not disease in the system, exhibiting symphoms of feverishese and external agitation, in exact proposition of our columns to a liberal discussion of the all absorbing topic of the day and the age; viz: the expetitency of restricting slavery, or parpetuating and extending the institution.

The former being the ground eccupied by the Republican Party and the latter the position of the Democratic Party.

We ask our renders to give the attention of the laborers and mechanics of our City and State who the more especially to the attention of the laborers and mechanics of our City and State who may have been unwittingly lead into giving their to real them out?

Would the thillful happarents are proposed to reach them and endeavor in the system, exhibited in exact proposition to the spread (fslavery itself—or the vicience of its efforts to extend itself—belonging to the disease (or institution,) inseparable from it, rising and subsiding with it, like as in all other cases of Checased action, and not attributable to its treatment at all? It is slavery standing still?

Will it remain stationary by being let alone?

Will it remain stationary by being let alone?

The Liberals, nevertheless, are delighted with The Liberals, nevertheless, are deligated with the chatge, and indulgs anew their oid hopes of Constitutional freedom in Prussla. The retiring monarch was a scholar and a gendeman, though deficient in force of character. His brother, the Prince Regent, on the other hand, is said to be quite the reverse of this—wanting learning, amiability or refreement. His greater firmness and texcentive efficiency will tell against the plans of the Liberal party, rather than in their layor. They will doubtless find, in due time, that the alteration has not been made for thair pleasure or advantage.

that the alteration has not been made for their pleasure or advantage.

A change of ministry is perhaps ressonably atticipated, but anything more nearly approaching a representative government stands no better chance, certainly, that before. It is announced that the Chambers have unanimously approved the Regeroy. ANNIE LEE: OR THE Happy Results of a Maiden's Firmus In the neighborhood of Liverpool there are many pretty villages, quiet, unchtrusive places, with a charming rural espect, nowhere clse in the world to be seen but in England. In such the world to be seen but in England. In such charming retreats—the more charming because they derive some property from their contiguity to the great sea-port—there is generally to be found a class of persons, who, to limited agricultural pursuits, unite the business of a tradesmen. Of this class was Mr. Lee, a worthy, and to use the familiar phrase, a "well-tu-do" man. Its had married late in life, and at a somewhat advanced age tad been left a widower with an only child, a daughter, and, according to the unanimous testimony of the main portion of the community amongst whom she dwelt, the "pride of the vilmongst whom she dwelt, the "pride of the vil-

Annie Lee well deserved this title, for she was not only heautiful in person, but amiable in disposition, and, for a young girl in her station or life, exceedingly well educated. We will not specify the particular village, but we will atnot specify the particular village, but we will attempt to describe sweet Annio Lec. She belonged to that class of girls who, in personal appearance are decidedly English. Of the middle height of her sex, she possessed that poetic indescribable grace which we associate with a form whose modest pliancy and moderate fullness at once impress us with the idea of a woman who has not very long passed out of the sparkling buoyancy of sporting girlhood. Annie was twenty, and her deportment had acquired that tinge of seriousness natural to a girl of her years whou the cultivation of her mind has not been neglected. Her face was extremly heautiful in outline, although some of the features were not classically although some of the features were not classically regular. The rich lips when in repose we-rather firmly closed, and the chin was a little to large for those critics who look for perfection in large for those critics who look for perfection in every feature. But the upper portion of Annie's face was unexceptionable. Her straight nose, with slightly curved nosirile, above which beamed the light of dark blue unfathonable eyes, and all crowned by a delicately arched, white forehead, on each side of which reposed thick bands of dark brown pair, together with the blushing bloom of maiden health on her cheeks, rendered the ensemble of hor loviness delightfully attractive. Annie, however, had an inward beauty which munifested itself in her daily life. With the most exquisite tenderness there was linked a moral courage—an elevated moral courage—an sense of duty to herself and others rarely to be found in young women upon whom nature has lavished her favore, and who are continually exposed to the incease of flattery and admiration. As might have been expected, Annie Leo had many lovers, but there was one in the throng upon whom she had long ago bestowed her proference. He belonged to the same village as herself; and their pecuniary prespects were about equal, with the difference that Frank Harvey was already in possession of his patrimony, the ensemble of hor levliness delightfully attracabout equal, with the amerence that Frank Har-vey was already in possassion of his partinony, his parents being both dead. The young man rented on a long lease, a small, well-stocked farm, and had at command several hundred pounds in mancy; so that the match appeared a promising

In the morning, Harvey called and found Annie in the shop, serving some oustomers. She returned his cheerful saluration with that reserve customary with young ladies, when addressed by their lovers in the presence of others; but when they were alone, she reproached him for his neglect on the previous evening. Harvey, with a slight blush, said he had missed the train. "You must have missed two," said Abnie, ouletly.

prayed, entreated, held up to him examples, warnings; and finding all of no avail, to her father's surprise, but not regret, she caused the marriage to be postponed indefinitely. The national purity of her nature revolved at the idea of him advas must come the atonement. Would marrying a man who had so far forgotten himself: that all girls, similarly placed, would think as if it must be admitted that the never-to-be-forgot ten pale face at the wicket-gate, seen in the ten pale face at the wicket-gate, seen in the would rwilight, very much influenced her determination.

"I do not love the spectre of Frank Harrey,"

"I do not love the spectre of Frank Harrey,"

"That would not be very difficult." replied

"I am seasoned now, and defy even Annie to see there's anything the metter with mo," he said, valar-gloriously, as one evening in June he called at Annie's father's bouse, and took his accustomed seat in the parlor.

Annie observed with borror that he was very much intoxicated, and the memory of the pale face at the wicket gate came over her with sickening distinctness. Her father, although short-sighted, noticed semething strange in Harvey's behavior, but, had the latter confined himself to ordinary topics, the old man might not have known the cause. As the fames of the poissonous compounds he had swallowed to excess mounted known the cause. As the fumes of the poisonous compounds he had swallowed to excess mounted to his brain, Harvey became excited, and prosently all sense of discretion vanished in the vain desire to communicate what he considered good "Congratulate me," he exclaimed, with difficulty suppressing a biccup, "congratulate me!

—I stand a chance of making three thousand

—I stand a chance of making three thousand pounds."

"Glad to hear it," said Mr. Lee. Through a deceased relative, I suppose?"

"Deceased fiddlesticks!" exclaimed Harvey.

"No. Look you here! Annie and I are to be married next year, so I thought I'd risk a hundred or two, to make her more comfortable like, so I took Ton Higgin's advice, and laid 'en out on the next July cup. Sure to win—so Tom says; and although I have lost two 'un, never venture, never win. So you see, Annie, I shall put three thousand pounds in your apron next month. What do you think of that, sweet-heart?"

heart?"
With this rhodomontade, Harrey attempted to draw nearer to Annie, but she retreated behind her father's chair, saying "Frank, go home, down the road, through scattaing, binding teats, for some one coming.

In the morning, Harrey called and found Anic in the abop, serving some oustomers. Stereumed his cheerful soluration with that reserve customary with young ladies, when addressed by their loyers in the presence of others; but when they were alone, she repreached him for his neglect on the previous evening. Harvey, with a slight blush, said he had missed the train.

"You must have missed two," said Annic, quietly.

"Only one; in fact, I was detained by business beyond my usual time," was the hurried reply. What broad shoulders that same "business" must have to bear the enormous load that its placed upon-them!

Annie looked her dissatisfaction as her father emerged from the little parlor behind the shop, and in a hearty English way, invited Harvey inside. The old man loved to hear all he could about the market he had ceased to attend, and what was stirring in Iaverpool.

Harvey, for a man, was an excellent match for Annie in appearance. He was a tall, manly, good-looking fellow, of about four and twenty; the product of the serving should be a serving and the province of the said and the serving some outcomers. his dreadful account. His three children were crying by his side, and, on some rags in a cornor lay his wife, prostrate, dying in the last stage of consumption. The crimson and black cloud, through which Harvey had looked at the world for many a day, vanished—his former self started up like a bright angel, and he applied himself vigorously to the exigencies of the case. He roused the neighbors, procured the attendance of a medical man, and bestowed on the afflicted family all the money he had about him.

"Anie will not let them starve," be meutally observed as he proceeded to the farm, sad and thoughtful. In found an execution on the premises. He was ruined, and knew it, but did not lament or bewall his fortune. On the contrary, he went to bed and slept soundly. The catastrophe he had witnessed had completely revolutionized his morbid nature. In the course of the week he arranged his affairs, paid his creditors in full, and, after giving up possession of the farm to the incidlord, found himself worth about fifty pounds. With that is his pocket he disappeared from the neighborhood, and was never seen in it again. He bade adieu to none, not even to Annie, for he was tenamed of himself. He did pause at a bend in the road that commanded a view of her home, and breathed a prayer for her welline and happiness. It was the sweetest, holiest prayer he had uttered since he hed kneit at his mother's feet. "Annie will not let them starve," he mentally
